Demystifying Networking - why you should continue through the festive season with Vicky Ross

We often talk about networking but for many of us we can feel uncomfortable with the concept, unproductive or our contacts are limited or not sure where to start?

This informative and interactive session is designed to clarify what networking is and what it is not, exploring what might be holding us back from networking, how to get started and some tips and techniques to start us on the road to more effective networking.

Networking is beneficial no matter what stage you are in during your transition so please join Vicky Ross to share experiences, connect and hopefully leave with more confidence to start networking!

11:00 – 12:00 GMT:
Job Search Burnout with Julia Lockett

There is a saying that ‘finding a new job is a job in itself’, is it a cliché or a valid point?

This interactive session is designed for people who may need some support and encouragement in their job search.

We know that it’s hard to keep motivated at times and you may have found your journey so far stressful, you may be feeling a little overwhelmed about your next steps or just want to take time to regroup.

Join Julia to address these feelings, restore and refresh yourselves and put some strategies into place that can help counter the impact job search can have on us during transition.

This is an interactive session but due to the nature of the content will not be recorded to provide a safe place for participants to share experiences.

11:00 – 12:00 GMT:
Having a Full working Life Past 50 with
Jenny Brookes

The average person will spend over 90,000 hours at work over their lifetime, meaning our working lives matter. As we get older what we seek may alter, what we enjoy may change, we may have a different set of responsibilities within our personal lives, and we may wish to seek alternatives challenges for ourselves.

Ageing is inevitable however how we respond to this is well within our control. We will have our own feelings about age which will be influenced heavily on the messages that have been around you in the past and now. Has ageing been seen as a negatives or a time when someone is liberated and free? Are you experiencing feelings of self-doubt or worries about not getting a job based on age related stereotypes? These will be discussed together in the group.

What you require from an organisation may have changed and businesses are actively working on attracting over 55's. Both angles will be discussed as a group as well as understanding talent shortages.

Lastly, the next chapter may be one you are undecided on - you may be considering a pause in work or retirement. We will chat through how to make this a successful and fulfilling time.

This is an interactive session but due to the nature of the content will not be recorded to provide a safe place for participants to share experiences.

THUR

11:00 – 12:00 GMT:
The Meeting Place with Vicky Ross

A virtual drop-in to share, network, explore and engage. This session is designed to encourage you to share thoughts, experiences, hints and tips with likeminded people around your career journey so far. It doesn't matter where you are in your programme of support - start, middle or close to the end - talking with people going through the same experience may help you to have that light bulb moment you've been looking for or quite simply validate the decisions you have made.

We aim to create a safe and confidential space for you to get to know some of your peers, engage, create contacts and come away with tangible steps. Vicky Ross will be facilitating this interactive session. Please ensure you have the LinkedIn App downloaded on your phone if you would like to connect with others on the session during this event.
